BAR ASSOCIATION FAVORS PUNISHING OF JURY BRIBERS

Resolution Adopted to Have Committee Confer with District Attorney.

HAVE HEATED ARGUMENT

Good Name of Association Must Be Preserved and Action Against Those Who Tamper With Jurors Will Insure This, Is Sentiment of Attorneys.

At a meeting of the Fayette County Bar association held this morning there was an extended discussion of jury bribing and after a heated argument a resolution to have a committee of three appointed to counsel with the district attorney and private counsel for the Committee of One Hundred was adopted. The bar association also favors ferreting out alleged jury bribers and punishing them to put a stop to such proceedings.

Joseph W. Ray made a stirring address on the [illegible] of the bar association. He said that he had been a member for about eight years and that three months after he was admitted he heard certain [illegible] had been lost because of alleged jury bribing. [illegible] to such effect he said he heard on street corners in business places and even among members of the association.

He said he did not [illegible] to insinuate that the members of the association were involved but that even though the association was not responsible it could not be neutral. Attorneys A. E. Jones, John S. Chris[illegible], D. W. McDonald and James R. Cray and others agreed with him. He was given a big ovation.

District Attorney Miller said he would appreciate any assistance given by either members of the bar association or any other in wiping out the corruption.

Attorney H. S. Dumbauld opposed the resolution. He declared it was merely backing up the findings of three, the real [illegible] of which were election bribers.

Attorney Thomas H. Hudson explained that as counsel for the Committee of One Hundred he had information that jurors had been tampered with for not only the third week of court but also the first, second and fourth.

The resolution was presented by Attorney John S. Christy who stated that he did not feel it was accusing any members but he felt that the stamp of disapproval should be placed on the practice and that by so doing the bar association would recover its good name.

Connellsville to Lose Unit Under Reorganization of 10th Regiment.

Under the reorganization of the 10th Infantry in accordance with the requirements of the Militia Act and in conformity with Regular Army standards, Connellsville will lose the Sanitary Detachment.

Orders to that effect have not been received but it is known to a certainty that Washington is to be made the home station of the unit, which will consist of 23 enlisted men and five officers, two of whom are to be dental surgeons.

What influences have been responsible for depriving Connellsville of this unit are not made public but it has been stated that the medical officers of the Pennsylvania National Guard have indicated their desire to have the sanitary detachments made up largely of college students who contemplate becoming physicians or surgeons, hence the selection of Washington, a college town, as the home station of the 10th Infantry's detachment.

It is also said that the federal inspecting officer had some pointed criticism to make concerning the local organization following his visit here in February which may have had some effect in influencing the change to be made.

Leading food experts give interesting information to every mother in America

LEADING food experts of America have stated why Karo is one of the greatest of all energy-producing foods.

The reason for this is easy to explain. Karo is composed of a very large percentage of Dextrose.

Dextrose is one of the most important of all food items You could not live long without Dextrose. Most of the foods you eat—such as bread, starchy vegetables, and all forms of sugar—have to be changed into Dextrose before your system can use them as energy foods

So Karo may almost be said to be a predigested food. These are scientific facts, supported by the very highest medical and food authorities, and undoubtedly, is one reason for the tremendous nation-wide popularity of Karo

Give your children and the folks all the Karo they want.

Woman Drops Dead As Horse Driven By Her Son Runs Away

Becoming frightened when a horse driven by her son, John Jolly, broke loose from a plow and tore away a portion of the steps near the home where she was standing, Mrs. Rachel Pringle, 78 years old, of near Cheat Haven, dropped dead Saturday afternoon.

Deceased was twice married. Her first husband was William Jolly of Fairmont, W. Va., whom she married June 5, 1868. She remarried in 1899 to David Pringle of Cheat Haven. No children were born to the latter union.

Mrs. Pringle had been ill for many months. Saturday afternoon she stepped from the home after a four weeks' illness, to see the horse break away from the plow, tear away a portion of the front porch and then pass over the lawn. She swooned and then died. Mrs. Jolly is survived by the following sons and daughters: Thomas Jolly, Rosedale; Mrs. Ellen Bleier, Uniontown; Joseph Jolly, Fairchance; Mrs. Fannie Campbell, Greensburg; Robert Jolly, Connellsville; John Jolly, at home, where deceased had resided, and Mrs. Anna Keiser of Cheat Haven. Twenty-eight grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren also survive.

MONDAY EVENING, APRIL 4, 1921.

ALL TAXPAYERS MUST PAY.

The question for the city council to determine in relation to a repaving of Crawford avenue is whether that body wants to saddle a bill of $200,000 to $300,000 or only a fractional part of either sum upon the taxpayers of the city.

By recent decisions of the courts of Pennsylvania it has been held that the whole cost of repaving a street must be borne by the municipality and cannot be assessed against the abutting property owners. In cases from Williamsport, Reading and Harrisburg this question was passed upon by the courts, the decisions in substance being that "while the cost of the original paving of a city street may be assessed against properties thereon, as a species of taxation for the special benefit accruing, the repaving of such roadway being a purely public duty for the general benefit, the cost thereof cannot be imposed upon abutting properties, even though the cost of the original paving had been paid out of the city treasury."

These decisions simply mean that in a repaving of Crawford avenue, or any other street in the city, the whole cost thereof must be paid out of the city treasury, except that in the case of Crawford avenue the West Penn Railways company, under the terms of its franchise is obliged to pay for the paving between the rails and for a distance of 18 inches on each side, which obligation the company as announced its intention of fulfilling. But the remaining area of the street must be paved by the city and the funds must come from all the taxpayers whether their properties are located on Crawford avenue or not.

By the interpretation thus given the law by the courts the properties on Crawford avenue have derived their special benefit from the original paving for which they have paid. A repaving is a purely public duty for the general benefit" of all the people of the city for which they must pay their share as determined by the assessed value of their properties, regardless of their location with respect to the street improvement.

Such being the situation the question now before the city council has a very vital interest for every taxable in the city, not alone for those owning properties abutting on Crawford avenue.

HOW GERMANY CAN ESCAPE RUIN.

By this time the German government should have no difficulty in understanding that it cannot use the United States as an instrument to assist it in evading the responsibilities imposed by the treaty of Versailles. Similarly the Allies should just as clearly understand that the exactions from Germany as reparation for the devastation of France and Belgium must be determined fairly, as a measure of damage not of revenge.

The announcement of the Administration at Washington makes these points clear. "Our attitude," declares the official statement "is that we hold firm to the position that Germany should be forced to acknowledge its moral responsibility for the war and must pay reparation to the full limit of her ability to pay the amount to be determined by a fair and just process."

If Germany has ever indulged the delusion that the United States would lend its support to an attempt to evade payment the time has arrived when this delusion must be dispelled. That the German nation and people are able to pay to the limits of a reasonable demand is as well known to the world as it is to Germany. Further evasion is both futile and dangerous. France is determined that Germany shall pay and that determination has the backing of the Allies. The sooner Germany makes an honest effort to meet the demands the more certainly will the integrity of the government be assured; the sooner will there be a restoration to normal in distracted Europe and in the rest of the world as well.

In view of the unqualified declaration of the attitude of the United States, Germany can no longer play the peace game as she played the war game without imminent peril. "She is risking ruin," says Frank H. Simonds, the eminent writer on European affairs "as she risked it when she invoked the submarine as a weapon against her enemies, with the same obstinacy, the same blindness and for herself the same fatality. Provided German policy shows a sudden and complete change, provided Germany consents to meet Allied terms, at the very least to accept them and begin some respectable effort to pay, provided Germany lays aside her present campaign of threat and menace to France, there is yet a chance that she may escape."

Useful Discontent

By S. W. STRAUS
President American Society for Thrift

In the processes of stabilization now going on in this country, thrift must ever play an important part. It must be through this medium largely that the restless, surging forces of human aspiration and ambition are given constructive purpose. Ownership of a home, a farm, a business and the careful saving and investment of money are a few of the manifestations which develop contentment, a happy home life and individual progress.

It must be borne in mind that discontentment within itself is not a vice. There is a human impulse as immutable as the law of gravity which has ever driven mankind forward toward better and higher standards of living. Humanity today is groping toward those better standards. To some extent it is groping in the dark. But the grave unrest that is felt around the world is a manifestation of these natural and laudable impulses. Some of those manifestations are malignant and dangerous. Bolshevism has submerged Russia with its foul practices and unspeakable teachings. Its poison is spreading throughout the world and even in our own land so far away from the vortex of these sinister influences, we are confronted with dangerous forces that cannot be overlooked.

But eventual and permanent good will come from all the discontent and social unrest that exists today around the world for these grave problems of humanity will never be solved until they are settled on the side of eternal right, truth and justice to all. This has ever been the rule of human progress. Out of the great crises and conflicts of ideals right has always prevailed because right and all things that are right endure while all things that are evil must of their very nature come to an end.

Ambition is the outgrowth of discontent and education is but the expression of man's unwillingness to remain in the bondage of ignorance and illiteracy.

Success is discontentment expressed in terms of accomplishment.

In the solution of these problems there are duties which devolve both on society and on the individual. First of all society must give to the individual the right to live a clean, wholesome life and advance in the world; the individual must be willing to take advantage of these opportunities with all the power that lies within him.

These guiding and stabilizing influences can be put into operation in no better way than through the application of the principles of thrift.

THE SOISSON.

A CHILD FOR SALE —A picture of romance, pathos and comedy opened today at this theatre for a three day attraction Baby Ruth will sing "Who Wants a Baby" The author has taken for his theme the crying shame of our country and is to date the only playwright in the country who has taken the trouble to delve into the economic aches and ills of our great middle class the white collar fraternity the class that neither has the wealth of the capitalists or yet the skill of the laborer and still acts as the cement that holds these two tremendous institutions, capital and labor together He tells the story so graphically and so convincingly that with the opening of the first reel the attention of the audience is so deeply engrossed that every individual lives with the players on the screen sees their joys and suffers their sorrows It is the opinion of the reviewer that instead of setting down the story as it is told on the screen for the benefit of our readers it is best that every one who can manage to see this remarkable drama do so A Child for Sale comes to the Soisson direct from its record-breaking engagement at the Metropolitan opera house Philadelphia, where it played to the largest crowds in the history of Philadelphia theatricals

THE PARAMOUNT.

THE ORPHEUM.

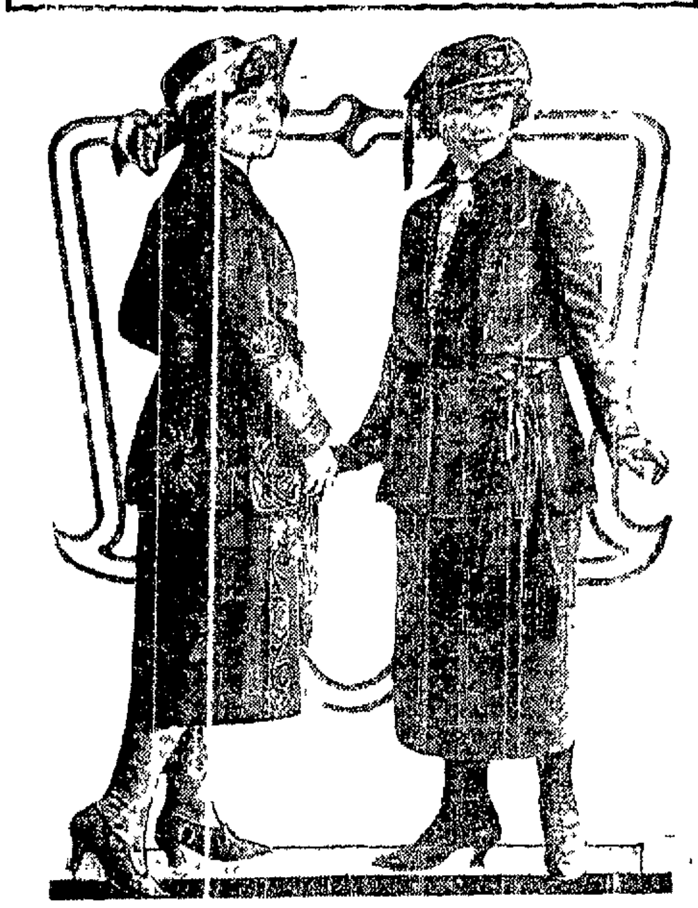

"WHILE NEW YORK SLEEPS —Picturing New York night life is the feature attraction today and will also be shown Tuesday and Wednesday Night life in New York among the several strata of society in that cosmopolitan city is pictured with wondrous fidelity in the three acts or episodes which compose the picture The play abounds with spectacular incidents and yet the thing that remains in the memory after seeing "While New York Sleeps is the almost intolerable suspense with which Director Charles J Brabin has succeeded in endowing his great picture Some magnificent views of the bright spots along the Great White Way have been used in the picture For instance there is a dancing number from Florenz Ziegfeld's popular Midnight Frolic girl-and music show together with gorgeous cabaret scenes from the Cafe Palais Royal Then the action plunges over to the East Side where we see tragedy in the lives of a tempestuous shop girl her puny gentlehearted husband whom she despises the saintly paralytic father of her man and the gangster leader of a band of thieves In this episode occurs a thrilling revolver battle between the famous New York police boat and a launch full of desperadoes

Spring Beckons in New Suits

NEVER was a season more clearly interpreted in suits than the oncoming spring is. A survey of any representative collection of them leaves one impressed with this fact and it is evident that designers have had it in mind in the host of styles and colors and that their interest is centering on new decorative features

The straight and flaring box coat models with loose sleeves widening toward the hand suggest balmy weather. They are made collarless or with small turnover collars and they reveal a variety of styles in the embellishments Many of them are embroidered others adopt braid or ribbons or silk braid decorations and an occasional model running true to form in considering the Chinese inspiration of the style shows coats with bright applique borders made of pieces of colored silks in various shapes applied with needlework in characteristic Chinese designs But embroideries in self color and braid or ribbon decorations are universally admired

Not all embroidered suits limit themselves to one color in their embroidery, for many of them introduce either other colors or metallic threads in the design A suit of this kind appears at the left of the two shown here with an elaborate part in in self color embroidery lightened by silver threads In this model the skirt is a little shorter and a little narrower than is sanctioned for the season for many figures are inclined to favor the lines of very young women—and others who hope to look youthful—by abbreviating skirts considerably The use of lined satin reveals the heading this feature of the styles is making and is given prominence by its width and long fringed ends

The tissue suit at the right is an elegant new arrival that will please those who like simple styles and smart lines It faces challenge comparison with it any embellishment except the decorative rows of buttons on the coat and a fringed satin sash

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr Edwards determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums So do strong liquids It is best not to take calomel Let Dr Edwards Olive Tablets take its place

Headaches "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver Take Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy" They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits 15c and 30c.

Teachers' Pay Light—Fire Tribute Heavy

Startling Statistics Show Need of Teaching Fire Prevention in Schools of Nation

IF the loss of property by fire in the United States in the last five years could have been saved and added to salaries for school teachers they would all have had approximately 67 per cent higher pay annually according to statistics which have just been compiled by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and issued in New York by the National Association of Credit Men

This amazing showing has just been made by the latter organization in connection with its nation wide campaign for fire prevention education in the public schools Bills providing for such education have been introduced in many of the State legislatures and such legislation is expected to be enacted by a majority of the States this year

According to the association's figures compiled from U S Government reports and National Board statistics, the total amount paid in salaries to teachers in 1918, the last year for which figures are available was $421 084 254 compared with a loss of $1 416 375,000 by fire for the five years ending with 1920 Thus the fire loss in those five years was about three and a third times the amount of teachers' salaries for the single year

In every State in the Union the fire loss for the period was greater than the annual teachers payroll, the only exception being in the District of Columbia where Uncle Sam tries to run a model city There only the situation was reversed

The statistics for each of the States are shown in the accompanying table.

In addition to the property waste by fire 75 000 human lives were sacrificed in the same time according to a statement just received by the National Association of Credit Men from Governor Harry L Davis, of Ohio

"I believe that one of the most effective methods of coping with this great peril is through the education of our children added the Governor.

Dr. Finegan's Educational Bill Endorsed

The educational program of Dr Thomas E Finegan state superintendent of public instruction as proposed in House bill No 1016 was endorsed by the school directors of Fayette county assembled at Uniontown Saturday Two suggestions were incorporated into the resolutions which will be forwarded to Harrisburg The two suggestions are

That the wages of teachers in the Third and Fourth class districts be made uniform as regards the minimum scales

That the minimum pay for provisional certificates be made $50

Characterizing the Edmonds or House bill No 1016 as one more nearly making teaching a profession than any other ever placed before the Assembly Lee Smith expressed his confidence at a conference of the county educators held in the county court house Saturday that the measure would be enacted with few changes

There were some of the educators who had an opinion prior to the convention that the bill proposed did not serve the districts alike and was objectionable but after Mr Smith's detailed explanation of every phase of the bill they were agreed it was the most progressive school legislation ever offered in the state and endorsed the proposed bill as a whole but advocating certain small changes

Mr Smith explained the objections raised from the various districts and the compromises reached He said there were certain clauses which did not suit him entirely but as a whole it was the best piece of legislation that had ever been placed before the House He said the proposed bill standardized wages to be paid the teachers and specified liberal percentages of the salaries to be paid by the state The bill provides that the state will pay 25 per cent of the minimum salaries of the teachers in the first class districts 5 per cent in the second and third class districts and 0 per cent in the fourth class districts The whole bill took into consideration the neglected districts and offered more assistance to these

Summing up the bill he said it fixed a minimum salaries of the teachers and went a step farther by paying a certain part of that salary The amount to be paid by the state he said was definite and liberal ranging from 25 per cent in the first class district to 50 per cent in the fourth class district The state pays 75 per cent in second and third class districts

"D—n you" gurgled the bounder half starting to his feet. Why shouldn't

"Why Shouldn't I Want to See You Killed?"

I want to see you killed? Haven't you done enough to me?"

"No!" the word was slammed at him like a bullet. And then, "As I told you in the beginning, we won't go into any phase of it that involves Mrs Collingwood Get back into your own boat Are you trying to tell me now that Hatch is threatening you?"

"He's played me for a come-on. He says he's got the whole business down in black and white with affidavits, and all that. He had the nerve to tell me less than an hour ago that he'd burn me alive if I didn't toe the mark."

"What does he want you to do?"

"He wants me to stick around here so that he can use me against you. He knows how you're mixed up with Sheila and that you can't turn a wheel without making it look as if you were going after me on your own personal account."

There was silence for a little time It was an awful muddle, with bloody murder sticking out of it on every side.

"If you have come here with the idea that I can force Hatch's hand you are very much misled," said the boss at the close of the electric pause. And then: "Has he made it appear to you that he was merely trying to help you avenge your own fancied wrongs?"

"He said I ought to get you; that any man who would make love to a married woman ought to be got

My chief was looking past the derelict and out through the darkened window.

"You don't know me Mr Collingwood, but you do know your wife; and you know that she is as far above suspicion as the angels in heaven. Let that part of it go Hatch was merely using you for his own ends. If he could persuade you to kill me off out of the way it would be merely that much gained in the business fight. You haven't done it thus far, and now he is using your check-cashing excursion as a club with which he proposes to brain the entire railroad management your uncle included, if we interfere with his plans

Collingwood scowled up at the ceiling, shifting the dead cigar from one corner of his mouth to the other

"So that's the way of it, is it?" he commented "He was working for his own pocket all the time and Uncle Breck stands pat and slips him the ace he was needing to make his hand a winner Between you and me Norcross, I believe this d—d piker needs killing a few times, himself

The boss sat back in his swing chair and I could just imagine that he was trying to get some sort of proper angle on this young fellow who in addition to his other scoundrelisms, big and little had wrecked the life of Sheila Macrae I knew what he was thinking He had a theory that no man that was ever born was either all angel or all devil, and he was hunting for the redeeming streak in this one

When you looked right hard at the haggard face you could see something sort of half appealing in it something to make you think that perhaps away back yonder before the spoiling began, there used to be a man never a strong man, I guess, but one that might have been generous and free-hearted maybe I got a fleeting little glimpse of that back-number man when he turned suddenly and said

"One night a few weeks ago when I was full up, Hatch got hold of me and told me you were out at the Kendrick place with Sheila He made me believe that I ought to go out there and kill you, and I started to do it Do you know why I didn't do it?"

"No," said the chief mighty quietly

"Well, I'll tell you One night last spring up at the Bullard you slammed me one in the face and dragged me off to my room to keep me from making a bigger ass of myself than I'd already made. I haven't forgotten that In all these crooked years, nobody else has even taken the trouble to chuck me decently out of sight and give me a chance to brace Drunk as I was, I remembered it that night when I was climbing up to a window in the major's house and trying to get a shot at you"

Mr Norcross shook his head more than half sympathetically I thought

"Let that part of it go and tell me about this other trouble" he said 'How badly are you tangled up in this political business?'

I've given it to you straight on the bribing proposition Uncle Breck used me as a money carrier because—well, maybe it was because he couldn't trust Bullock I didn't know definitely what Bullock was doing with the checks I cashed for him though I supposed of course it was something that wouldn't stand daylight It was only a side issue with me I was coming out here anyway I knew Sheila had made up her mind—God knows she's had cause enough but I had a crazy notion that I'd like to be on the same side of the earth with her again for just a little while Then his— he trailed off in a babble of maledictions poured out upon the man who had trapped him and used him

The boss straightened himself in his chair but he still was speaking gently when he said

'You are not asking my advice and I don't owe you anything personally Mr Collingwood But I'll say to you what I might say to a better man in like circumstances You have done all the harm you can, but as I see it there doesn't seem to be any need of your staying here to suffer the consequences Why don't you go back to New York taking your wife with you if she will go?'

Collingwood's smile was a mere teeth baring grimace

Sheila made her wedding journey with me once when she was just eighteen The next time she rides with me it will be at my funeral Oh I've earned it and I'm not kicking And about this other thing I can't duck You know what Hatch's holding me for He told me just a little while ago that if I stepped aboard of a train I'd be arrested before the train could pull out

It was a handsome little precaution on the part of the chief of the grafters If a fight should be precipitated—if the boss should try to checkmate the C S & W gobble—the arrest and indictment of President Dunton's nephew would serve bully good and well as a dramatic bit of side play to keep the newspapers from printing too much about the other thing

If you really want to go I think it can be arranged in some way in spite of Hatch and his bluffing Mr Norcross put in quietly So far as our railroad troubles are concerned it will neither help nor hinder for you to stay on here, now

As if the helpful suggestion had been a lighted match to fire a hidden mine of rage Collingwood sprang to his feet with his dull eyes ablaze.

"No by God! he swore I'm going to make him come across with those affidavit papers first! You wait right here, Norcross You think I'm all cur, but I'll show you There isn't much left of me but hound dog but even a hound dog will bite if you kick him hard enough Lend me a gun, if you've got one and I'll——'

"Hold on—none of that!" the boss broke in sternly jumping out of his chair to enforce the command But before he could make the grabbing move the corridor door slammed noisily and the madman was gone

CHAPTER XVI

The Deserter

Mr Norcross chased out and tried to overtake Collingwood going as far as the foot of the stairs I went too but got only far enough to meet the boss coming up again There was nothing doing The station policeman had seen the crazy rounder jump into a taxi and go spinning off up town

There was another jolt waiting for us when we got back to the office While we were both out Mr Van Britt had blown in from his room at the foot of the hall and we found him lounging comfortably in the chair that Collingwood had just vacated

'I thought maybe you'd turn up again pretty soon since you'd left the doors all open" was the way he started out Then 'Sit down Graham I want to tell a few lines'

Mr Norcross took his own chair and twisted it to face the general superintendent "Say it" he commanded briefly

Mr Van Britt hooked his thumbs in his armholes

"I've just been figuring a bit on the general outlook you have a decently efficient operating outfit here what with Perkins and Brant and Conway handling the three divisions as self contained units You don't need a general superintendent any more than a monkey needs two tails

"What are you driving at?" was the curt demand

"Well suppose we say retrenchment for one thing As I size it up, you might just as well be saving my salary It would buy a good many new crossties in the course of a year

That's all bunk and you know it snapped the boss The organization as it stands hasn't a single stick of dead wood in it You know very well that a railroad the size of the Short Line can't run without an individual head of the operating department

Mr Van Britt laughed a little at that

If you should get some one of these new efficiency experts out here he would probably tell you that you could cut your staff right in two in the middle

I could see that the boss was getting mighty nearly impatient

"You are merely turning handsprings around the edges of the thing you have come to say Upton" he barked out 'Come to the point can't you? What have you got up your sleeve?'

Nothing that I could make you understand in a month of Sundays I'm sore on my job and I want to quit

"Nonsense' You don't mean that?

"Yes, I do I'm tired of wearing the brass collar of a soulless corporation What's the use anyway? I found a bunch of dividend checks from my bank at home in the mail to-day and what good does the money do me? I can't spend it out here can't even tip the servants at the hotel without everlastingly demoralizing them I'm like the little boy who wanted to go out in the garden and eat worms'

The boss was frowning thoughtfully

'You're not giving me a show Upton he protested Can't you blow the froth off and let me see what's in the bottom of the stein?

Pledge you my word It's all froth Graham I want to climb up on the mesa behind the shops and take a good deep breath of free air and shake my fist at your blamed old cow track of a railroad and tell it to go to the devil You shouldn't deny me a little pleasure like that

It was getting under the boss's skin at last I can't believe that you really want to resign h broke out sort of hopelessly It's simply preposterous

Pull it down out of the future and put it in the present and you've got it said Mr Van Britt 'I have resigned I wrote it out on a piece of paper and dropped it into your mail box as I came through the outer office It's signed sealed and delivered You'll give me a testimonial or something of that sort To Whom It May Concern won't you? I've been obedient and faithful and honest and efficient and all that haven't I?

"I'd like to know where you got our liquor Upton That is the most charitable construction I can put upon all this Why man alive! you're quitting me in the thick of the toughest fight the grafters have put up

'Yes I know but a man's got only one life to live and I've always had a sneaking sympathy for the high private in the front rank who didn't want to stand up and get himself shot full of holes I'm running and if you should ask me why I'd tell you what the retreating soldier told Stonewall

Handing In a Thick Bunch of Telegrams for Transmission

Jackson he said he was running only because he couldn't fly Once more the boss grew silently thoughtful Out of the digging mental inquiry he brought this

'Has this sudden notion of yours anything to do with Sheila Macrae, Upton?

Pledge you my word again I met Sheila on the street today and promised her that I wouldn't so much as tip my hat to her while Collingwood is on this side of the Missouri river

But if you quit you'll go east yourself won't you?

Maybe after a while For the time being I'd like to loaf on you for a week or so and watch the wheels go around without my having to prod them It's running in my mind that this newest phase of the C S & W business is going to stir up a mighty pretty shindy and I had a foolish notion that I'd like to sit around and look on—as an innocent bystander

The innocent bystander usually gets shot in the leg the boss ripped out, with the brittlest kind of humor And then 'I suppose I shall have to let you do what you want to—and let you pick your own time for giving me the real reason But you are crippling me most savagely Upton—and at a time when I am least able to stand it

Mr Van Britt got up and edged his way toward the door

It's a good ... Graham and some time—say when we are walking through the ... of the New Jerusalem together ... I'll tell you about it I ... it ...

scrapper I'd stay and help you fight it out with Hatch but you know the old saying— apple is always ... and my present credit at the Portal City National is pretty well up to a quarter of a million thanks to the dividends I deposited today ... night I'll see you in the morning If by that time you haven't decided to cut me cold

I kept right busy over the indexes after Mr Van Britt went away just to give the boss a little chance to catch up with himself He was catching it hot and heavy on all sides All we needed now was for ... Dunton to come smashing in with one more good jolt and it would be all over but the obsequies the monument and the epitaph At least that is the way it looked to me

It was along about ten o'clock when the boss closed his desk with a bang and said we'd better say it off for the night ... walked up town with him and as we were passing the Bullard he turned in to ask the night clerk if Collingwood was in his room The answer was nix that the young New Yorker hadn't been seen since dinner

On the way on we saw Mr Van Britt at the telegraph window He was handing in a thick bunch of telegrams for transmission ... he ... pointedly turned the sheets face down upon the marble slab when we came along as much as to say it's none of your business what I'm doing

It struck me as sort of curious that he should have so much wire correspondence when he claimed to be ... a rest and why he was so careful not to let us get a glimpse of what it was all about But the whole thing was now so horribly ... that a little matter more or less in any body's past couldn't make much difference and that was the thought I took to bed with me ... to ... our rooms in the railroad club

CHAPTER XVII

The Beginning of the End

However much the Hatch people may have wanted to ... regarding the change of ownership and policies in the ... house reorganization the prompt announcement of a general strike of the employees was enough to ... every newspaper in the state ...

We had the Mountaineer at our breakfast table in the club grill room on the morning of the day when the strike was advertised to go into effect There was a news story with big headlines in red ink and also an editorial Cantrell didn't say anything against the railroad ... It's comments were those of an observer who wished to be straightforward and fair to all concerned but his editorial did not spare ... stockholders whose swapping and selling had made the coup possible

Cantrell himself, much ... ing as if he had ... about three hours too early drifted into the grill room and took a seat at our table before we were through

'I wanted to be decent about it Norcross he said forestalling any thing that the boss might be going to say about the editorial in the Mountaineer I'm trying to believe that the men higher up in your railroad councils haven't fathered this Hatch scheme of consolidation—which is more than some of the other pencil pushers will do for you I'm afraid Thanks to your publicity insurance everybody believes that you'll hold the whip hand over the combination with your ground leases I'm not asking what you propose to do ... merely taking it for granted that you are going to stick to your policy and hoping that you will come and tell me about it when you are ready to ...

'I shall do just that the boss promised and I guess he would have been glad to let the matter drop at this ... only Cantrell wouldn't

I lost three good hours sleep this morning on the chance of catching you here at table the editor went on A little whisper heard in ... last night ... morning that ... you haven't been having ... with your own employees ... Norcross?

Not a bit in the world ... There is ... But ... indignation meetings held ... to ... protesting against the ... ... that ... with the C S & W employees if they are ... to carry ... of striking at noon ... the whisper that I spoke of ... that ... might extend to the railroad employees

There's nothing in it said the boss ... I suppose you mean in the way of a sympathetic strike and that is entirely improbable I imagine very few of the C S & W employees belong to any of the labor unions

'A strike on the railroad would hit you pretty hard just now wouldn't it? Cantrell asked

Mr Norcross dodged the question "We're not going to have a strike ... and since we had finished our breakfast he made a business excuse and we slid out

COAL CONSUMERS ARE CONTROLLING FACTOR AT PRESENT

Their Mistrust of Sellers Prevents Closing of Contracts.

BUYING ONLY AS NEEDED

In Expectation That Lower Prices Will Rule Later; Willing to Risk Depletion of Stocks; Resentful When Recalling Last Year's High Prices.

WASHINGTON, April 4—Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the United States Geological Survey, and F. G. Tryon, coal statistician of the survey, have made the following analysis of the obvious facts in the present coal depression:

"During the first week of March the operators at some 2,600 soft coal mines reported to the Geological Survey that they worked on the average only 19 hours out of the possible 48 working hours in the week. They were closed down, so they stated, on account of "no market," or lack of orders, an average of 26 hours. They lost a little time on account of labor shortage, and a smaller amount because of local strikes in Kansas and Missouri. Here and there a mine lost a few hours' working time because cars were not placed when ordered, or because of mechanical breakdowns. But the loss on account of all these other factors combined was only two and a half hours as against the 26 hours—more than three days—because of lack of demand.

"Making due allowance for what may have been happening at other mines not reporting to the survey and for the fact that no mine can in practice long maintain output at 100 per cent capacity, it is still clear that the soft coal industry is at the moment very short of business. It has 8,000,000 tons a week of demonstrated mine capacity lying idle, and what is worse, piling up capital and maintenance charges waiting for the consumers in the United States or abroad to place their orders. Most serious is the fact that the bituminous coal industry has a veritable army of unemployed. The 615,000 mine workers are offered not over three days' work a week, and at many mines only two or even one day. Coal miners in the United States draw a pretty good day's wage, but they cannot continue indefinitely to make ends meet on one or two days' work a week. Looking at it from another angle, the depression at the coal mines is costing us as great a loss in potential man-power as if our army on the Rhine were 350,000 strong instead of 15,000.

"It may be charged that even in times of active demand the railroads can not provide cars to keep the mines busy continuously. Very well, then, measure the present depression against what we know the railroads can do. In the first week of March the output was 7,263,000 tons. The next week it dropped to 6,891,000. The preliminary figure for the third week of March (14-19) is 6,525,000. Now four months ago, before the market broke, the railroads were furnishing cars enough for an output of over 12,800,000 tons a week. Indeed, on two occasions in the past, when extraordinary measures were invoked to stimulate car supply at the mines, the railroads provided transportation sufficient to get out a total of 13,100,000 tons. Thus the present rate of output is less than half what the carriers can handle under pressure, and a good 6,000,000 tons short of what they were doing only last December. The best demonstration that the roads stand ready to handle more coal is that they have some 304,000 open cars lying around idle on sidings, according to the American Railway association. Because these cars are idle the roads are discharging men by the thousands. And as in the case of the idle mines and machinery, so with the idle cars; not only are they bringing the roads no revenue, when revenue is badly needed, but they are steadily eating up other earnings with capital and maintenance charges.

"All signs, then, point to the consumer as the controlling factor in the present situation. Of course the coal man has come to expect a period of dullness in early spring as one of the drawbacks of his seasonal business. But this year the slump is far worse than the normal, even considering the mild winter. For the consumer is having troubles of his own; the business depression has reduced his requirements. In December last the beehive coke ovens, for example, were taking 660,000 tons of coal a week. Today they are using only 270,000 tons. Somewhat the same reduction has been going on in other domestic industries and at the same time exports have also fallen sharply. With current consumption curtailed in this manner it is clear that the mere fact that production is down to six and a half million tons a week does not of itself prove that consumers are purchasing less than their requirements. Indeed, the rate of output has not yet touched the low point reached during our latest real business depression, in 1914. That, however, was seven years ago, and our normal rate of growth has been such that 7,000,000 tons in 1921 would be as low as 6,000,000 was in 1914. If the business depression proves to be long-sustained, then the present low rate of production carries no threat of an approaching shortage of coal. If, on the other hand, business should suddenly resume at full blast we know that the railroads will hardly be in a position to haul coal enough to rebuild stocks, meet current consumption, and handle other freight at the same time without signs of distress.

"There is reason to believe, however, that the business depression is not the only consideration in the mind of the consumer at present. He remembers what he used to pay for coal before the war. He recalls that he could then get an abundance of coal for $1.15 f. o. b. mine. He knows that on the average in 1918 coal was costing $2.50 or $2.60 at the mine. He sees that prices of many other commodities have fallen since 1918, and notes that the lowest price quoted on spot coal is $2 run of mine, f. o. b. mine, with many quotations at $2.50, $2.75 and $3, or over. He finds that little coal is offered for contract at less than $3 a ton. He remembers with resentment the prices he had to pay last year, and he decides to buy only as needed and wait for the price to come down to a reasonable figure.

"The operator, however, retorts that the price has gone down as far as it possibly can; that many mines have been in consequence forced to close, and that with the successive wage advances of April, 1916, April and October, 1917, and March and August, 1920, the cost of producing coal has so increased that a return to pre-war prices is impossible. The consumer must awaken to the fact, argues the operator, that whereas before the war he would think in terms of $1.00 or $1.25 coal, now he must think in terms of $2.50, $3.00, or $3.50 coal f. o. b. mine.

"In so far as the consumer is waiting for the price to come down, at the risk of depleting his reserves against winter requirements, the relief turns upon a question of fact, namely, whether the present market price of coal is a reasonable price, whether it is as low as can be expected later. It is to be regretted that the Federal Trade commission has been enjoined from learning the facts and so is not able to issue a statement of present-day costs that would enlighten the public.

"'Buy only as needed' may prove too conservative advice at the present time. The consumer waiting for low prices and the producer delaying price adjustment might be found equally responsible for the uneconomic seasonal fluctuation in coal output. 'Buy only as needed' may result in cheaper coal in the bin, but the bin may be too nearly empty much of the time when the need is greatest.

"The plain situation is that the coal buyer distrusts the coal seller, and 'no market' as given in the weekly returns in part simply reflects the consumer's attitude. His answer to offers of contracts may be natural, but is it safe?

"The consumer must ask, 'Have I sufficient stocks in my bin to tide me over a period of bad weather, or an interruption to my supply, in view of what I shall need to make the goods to fill the orders I expect to have?'

"To the railroads the question becomes 'Have we as the largest consumers of coal laid in an adequate reserve against the period of active business which must one day come?'

"And not the least searching should be the question asked by the producer of himself—'Have I made the utmost possible concessions to the user of coal?' Have we as an industry done wisely in opposing the collection and publication by the federal government of data on the costs of production.'"

MRS. REIFENSTEIN, AGED 67, GAINS 25 POUNDS

Declares She Would Like to Put a Bottle of Tanlac in the Hands of Every Sick Man, Woman and Child in This Country—Never Saw Its Equal.

MRS. EMMA REIFENSTEIN, 337 Webster Ave., Syracuse, N. Y.

"I am 67 years of age, but in all my experience I have never known a medicine like Tanlac. Think of it! At my age to gain 25 pounds in weight, but that is just what I have done," said Mrs. Emma Reifenstein, of No. 337 Webster avenue, Syracuse, N. Y.

"If I had it in my power," she continued, "I would put a bottle of Tanlac in the home of every sick man, woman and child in this country, for I know what this wonderful medicine would do for them. For almost two years I was almost a nervous wreck. I did not dare to leave the house or even go up town unless my husband went with me. I was afraid to even cross the street and had a feeling of dread all of the time.

"My stomach was weak and easily upset. For days at a time I would go without solid food. I could not rest at night to do any good and felt tired and worn out all of the time. Some days I could hardly drag myself across the room and was so weak and miserable I was ready to give up.

"My health is fine now and I eat anything I want and never have a touch of indigestion. I have never slept better than I do now. My recovery is the talk of our neighborhood, as it was generally believed I could not last but a few weeks longer. This grand medicine has brought me health and happiness and I just can't say enough in its praise."

Mr. J. Reifenstein, in commenting on his wife's statement, said: "Yes, her recovery has been a happy surprise to us all. A few weeks ago I had no idea she would be able to pull through, but now she is in better health than I have ever seen her and the credit is due to Tanlac. We have been married 52 years today and I don't believe I have ever seen her looking any better."—Adv.
